WASHINGTON DC -- The Field/DC and Dance Place present, Fieldwork for Mixed Disciplines Final Showing, an evening of experimental new works on Wednesday December 14 at Dance Place. The program includes performance art, music, dance, storytelling and mixed media. This one-time-only, mid-week experience features Eames Armstrong, Brian Buck, Leah Curran Moon, Mark Fleury, Steve Little, Ilana Silverstein, Lisi Stoessel, and Lori Yuill.

What is The Field? The Field/DC is part of an international network of independent performing artists. Fieldwork is a process that supports the development of new artistic works. At each session, artists of any discipline show works-in-progress and exchange feedback with their peers in a format designed by artists. The Field/ New York City was founded in 1986 by artists for artists. Fieldwork is not adjudicated. Feedback is led by a trained facilitator. www.thefield.org

Fieldwork for Mixed Disciplines Showing comes to Dance Place in Northeast Washington, DC on December 14, 8pm. The cost will be $10 general admission. To purchase tickets, visit www.danceplace.org or call 202.269.1600.
